

A Bit About Me

To become a family doctor, I went to medical school at George Washington University in Washington, DC and graduated with honors in 1991. I then did my family medicine residency training at the Maine-Dartmouth Family Practice Residency in Augusta, Maine. I joined Bennington Family Practice in 1997 and then opened my own office in North Bennington the spring of 2008. I live in North Bennington with my husband, and two children. We spend our free time gardening, camping and Nordic skiing.
